

The goal is to address the health and well-being of all people, regardless of their background, race, ethnicity, or social status. This is achieved through a combination of policies, programs, and practices that promote health and prevent disease. The goal is to create a society where everyone has the opportunity to live a long and healthy life.

What does "Health in All Policies" mean?

The concept of "Health in All Policies" (HiAP) is a strategy for addressing the health and well-being of all people, regardless of their background, race, ethnicity, or social status. It is a cross-sectoral approach that involves all sectors of society, including government, business, and civil society. The goal is to create a society where everyone has the opportunity to live a long and healthy life.

The concept of social determinants of health refers to the conditions in which people live, work, and play that affect their health. These conditions include social and economic conditions, physical and built environments, and social networks and support systems.

The goal of HiAP is to create a society where everyone has the opportunity to live a long and healthy life. This is achieved through a combination of policies, programs, and practices that promote health and prevent disease. The goal is to create a society where everyone has the opportunity to live a long and healthy life.

What does this model general plan language do?

